Overview

Amanda Fernandez is a barrister based in 3PB's London office.

Amanda has won numerous academic and advocacy scholarships, including an award for her cross-examination skills. She accepts instructions in property, housing, commercial and personal injury litigation.

She has a busy court practice and regularly appears in the County Court in all manner of interlocutory applications and trials as well as housing matters. She also welcomes instructions on all written advisory and drafting work.

Prior to pupillage, Amanda represented clients in consumer credit, debt recovery and enforcement disputes as a County Court Advocate. She also worked as a banking and finance litigation paralegal in an international law firm, where she drafted legal letters and statements of case in claims in breach of contract and misrepresentation issued for and against a major international bank.

Amanda also worked pro-bono for a law clinic providing non-contentious corporate legal advice to business start-ups. She conducted conferences and provided written advice to multiple start-up companies on matters such as company structure, company registration and shareholdings.

Amanda is friendly and approachable and speaks fluent Spanish.

Outside work, Amanda enjoys backpacking, camping and outdoor swimming (in all weather)!
