Overview

Amanda Fernandez is a barrister based in 3PB's London office. Amanda's practice primarily spans commercial, property, and housing litigation.

Amanda has experience representing clients in various stages of court proceedings, including applications, pre-trial/interlocutory hearings, and trials. Amanda also has experience in drafting written advices and pleadings in a range of commercial and property matters.

Prior to joining 3PB Barristers, Amanda worked as a County Court Advocate, where she represented clients in hearings in the County Courts in all manner of applications, consumer credit matters, charging orders and housing matters. She also worked as a banking and finance litigation paralegal in an international law firm, where she assisted in the drafting of legal letters and statements of case in claims of breach of contract and misrepresentation issued against a major international bank. In addition, she provided pro-bono non-contentious corporate legal advice to business start-ups on matters such as company structure, company registration and shareholdings.

Amanda has won numerous academic and advocacy scholarships, including an award for her cross-examination skills.

Outside work, Amanda enjoys reading, travelling, walking her dog and outdoor swimming (in all weather)! She is friendly and approachable and speaks fluent Spanish.
