Employment and discrimination

Lachlan is regularly and frequently called upon to advise and represent Claimants and Respondents in disputes before employment tribunals throughout the country, and before the Employment Appeal Tribunal. He specialises in areas of discrimination and public interest disclosure, but his extensive experience in employment litigation includes:

- Unfair Dismissal claims (substantive and procedural, constructive, automatic)
- Wrongful dismissal claims
- Discrimination claims (disability, sex, sexual orientation, race, religious beliefs, gender reassignment)
- Maternity rights
- Equal Pay claims
- Public Interest Disclosure claims (whistle-blowing)
- Redundancy payment claims (statutory and contractual)
- National Minimum Wage and Working Time disputes
- Transfer-of-Undertakings (TUPE) disputes
- Unlawful wage deduction claims
- Employment Tribunal jurisdiction and procedural disputes
- High Court and County Court litigation, including:
 - contractual bonus and share issues
 - restrictive covenants
 - employers' references
 - vicarious liability for professional negligence
 - fiduciary obligations of senior employees and directors.

In addition, Lachlan has advised extensively on the effective drafting of:

- Contracts of employment, including restrictive covenant clauses
- Confidentiality clauses
- Disciplinary and grievance procedures
- Compromise agreements.

As a trained mediator, Lachlan is also frequently called upon to act as counsel in mediations concerning employment disputes.
